Terry Ludwig Biography:

Terry Ludwig received his formal art education under William Mosby and Joseph Vanden Broucke at the nationally acclaimed American Academy of Art in Chicago, IL. Since that time, he's participated in numerous workshops with mentors such as Harley Brown, Mark Daily, Lorenzo Chavez and Matt Smith.

He's exhibited in many juried exhibitions, galleries around the nation and his work hangs in many personal collections. He's best known for his own line of high-quality soft pastels, which are used and sold around the world.

Terry teaches extensively in the United States on subject matters such as color theory, landscape, figurative, portraiture and still life.

Terry's approach to workshops is lively and fun-filled. He's a master of the basics and advanced topics; and he easily shares his expertise with a sense of humor and solid foundational skills. Students enjoy learning his techniques in a laid back and supportive environment.

"I like to capture a spirit in my art, whether it is a personality, a feeling inspired by nature or even a humorous experience. It's true of the way I relate to people too. I am spirited and enjoy each person's unique nature."
